Pregnancy Test Your Stories

Your Stories

Add your story to the history of the pregnancy test! The Exploring and Collecting History Online: Science and Technology project at the Center for History and New Media(CHNM) at George Mason University is collecting these personal stories for historical and educational use only.

To tell your story, click here. You will be sent to a page on the CHNM website.

To read others' stories, click here. You will be sent to a page on the CHNM website.

Please note: These surveys will not be used for marketing purposes. Participation is voluntary, can be anonymous, and you will not be added to any mailing list. CHNM at George Mason University is solely responsible for maintaining the surveys. When you click on the above links, you will be leaving the NIH website

The only one-step, one-piece pregnancy test

Now you can know if you're pregnant in just 3 minutes.

Brochure for Clear Blue Easy, 1989 Explanations